Cobham awarded contract under US Department of Justice Radio Frequency Initiative

CARLSBAD, California – Cobham Surveillance has been awarded an Indefinite Delivery-Indefinite Quantity contract for wireless IP Mesh systems, IP hardware decoders, and microwave antennas from a major U.S. Federal Agency.

The award of this five-year framework agreement has been made under the Radio Frequency (RF) Initiative of the U.S. Department of Justice, and will assist the Department in the migration of its wireless spectrum networks. This is a part of what is more commonly referred to as 'Auction 66'.

The IP Mesh Systems supplied by Cobham will provide a robust and spectrally efficient means of deploying and managing ad-hoc wireless networks for the purposes of video, audio and tracking and locating in a variety of challenging environments.

Commenting on the award, David Helfgott, VP Cobham Surveillance said, 'This is an important win for Cobham Surveillance, reinforcing our leading position in the design and manufacture of IP MESH wireless products.'
